My name is Mariangela Autelitano.

I am a medical doctor and also hold a Master's degree in epidemiology (LSHTM), a specialization degree in Hygiene and Public Health (University of Rome), and a Doctorate in Public Health (University of Milan).

Between 1994 and 1999 I worked as a doctor in the Milan airport's health service, Linate and Malpensa airports.

Since 1999 I have been working in the epidemiology service of the Local Health Authority in Milan. I started organizing and directing the Milan mortality registry; in 2012, time at which I also became director of the Cancer Registry of Milan. I'm mainly involved in mortality and cancer, although my department gives epidemiological support to many activities for the local health service.

I participate in ECIBC as a patients-representative; I was diagnosed with breast cancer in February 2011. It was classified as an interval cancer (false negative), as I had undergone routine screening a few months before the diagnosis.
