

Patricia Fitzpatrick

GDG member

Dr Patricia Fitzpatrick (MB BCh BAO, DCH, Dip Med Mgt, MD, MPH, FRCPI, FFPHMI) trained in general medicine and public health medicine and is now Consultant Epidemiologist & Director of Evaluation for the National Cancer Screening Service, Ireland and Senior Lecturer and Associate Dean for Graduate Affairs in the School of Public Health, Physiotherapy & Sports Science, University College Dublin, Ireland.

She was Dean of the Faculty of Public Health Medicine, Royal College of Physicians of Ireland 2009-2011.

She is a board member of CSTAR – the Centre for Support and Training for Analysis and Research at UCD.

She is a current/former board Member of national statutory and professional boards, including the Institute of Public Health, National Cancer Registry Ireland and the Women's Health Council.

Her research interests include health services research and cancer prevention.

She is Academic Director of the UCD Centre for Health Services Research.

She has published 94 articles, 2 book chapters, 245 refereed papers & published abstracts, 50 reports and several published letters and short reports.